Make Your Political Contributions Count

Not all Republicans are worth electing and not all races are competitive. Focus your support on the races that matter in 2016.

Greg Gianforte

Typically considered a red state, Montana has elected left-of-center governors since the year 2000, driving the state's politics left. Businessman Greg Gianforte aims to change that and usher in conservative governance in 2017. The state's current Governor, Steve Bullock, is a national Democrat, chairing the Democratic Governors Association. Gianforte, a technology entrepreneur and philanthropist, stands out from some of the Republican predecessors in Montana for his ability to fundraise in a with the state extremely low contribution limits and for his well-articulated, fiscally and economically conservative views on issues facing Montana.
